THE DUTY OF DEMOCRATS.

The Democratic party of Hawaii has no ticket in the field. The leaders of the organization proposed a fusion with the Home Rulers, were promised it and then, in the final analysis, were cheated out of the award, and not only cheated but insulted in the process. They were told from the stump by Wilcox and from the press by his wife that the Home Rule party did not want them and could get along without them. This was enough for the self-respecting members of the party, and they are far from being committed by the fact that after having been cuffed and spit upon, some of their leaders, in return for two or three Home Rule nominations for themselves, pledged the Democratic party to the indorsement of Wilcox and his sorry crew. The surrender, as we say, does not include self-respecting Democrats. They are now in the field by themselves, unincumbered by party pledges, and intent on doing what is best for the Territory with which their individual interests are bound up.

This determination, however, has its advantages from a purely party standpoint; for it is in the inevitable breaking-up of the Home Rule party, which would follow the defeat of the ticket today, that the Democracy finds its chance in future. Should the Home Rulers win today after having repudiated fusion, they would have nothing to do with even individual Democratic aspirants in future. Feeling their strength they would demand all the prizes of party effort for themselves. Defeat would break them up and divide them thereafter between American parties. Hence it is wholly in the interests of the Democratic party to see that the Republican victory, already foreshadowed, is made decisive in its grand total of majorities.

There need be no sacrifice of principle in this matter. No national issue is at stake in this election. The result will not affect the tariff, the currency, or the trusts, for the next Delegate, whoever he may be, will have no vote in the House. We are electing, not a reinforcement to any party, but a BUSINESS AGENT FOR HAWAII at the source of national bounty. The Democrats are as much interested as the Republicans in the capacity of this representative; and it matters nothing to them what party label he bears. As to the Legislature the great point is to get one that will legislate for Hawaii. There are no candidates in the field who could carry through any legislation for the Democracy. It is a case of Home Rule law-making on the one side and Territorial law-making, chiefly at Republican hands, on the other. And in the result every responsible Democrat has the interest of the good citizen in which the Republicans share. The fight is his fight to get a Delegate who will secure appropriations for Hawaii and a Legislature that will pass the laws which the well-being of the Territory requires.

Men who are pledged to platforms can be counted on in advance. You know for what as well as for whom you are voting. The Independent candidate is pledged to nobody but himself and need do nothing for the people unless he feels like it. He isn't safe.

What the Republican party has done for Hawaii is written in every man's memory. What the Home Rule party has done is represented by a cipher.

When business is good, the wage earner keeps busy. But business cannot be good where a Home Rule legislator threatens values.

Wilcox is not dead physically; but in Congress no dead man could be of less service than he to the material interests of Hawaii.

Vote straight. Make this an understandable victory, not one you will have to figure over afterwards.

Nobody can get anything from a Home Rule legislature but a few members of the Home Rule party.

Vote on your way down to business. Fill the ballots in early.

VOTE STRAIGHT.

The value of a vote for the Republican ticket is gauged today, by its integrity. In other words the sending of a majority of the representatives of that party to the legislature, as well as the delegate to Congress will testify the true worth of the depth of the feeling of the people that the failures of the past two years must give place to the successes which are bound to follow Republican successes.

Of all the arguments which have been used in favor of a straight vote for the party which now stands for progress as against retrogression, none should have more weight than that of a life-long Democrat, who, seeing the trend of the times, yesterday decided that if there is to be a change at all it should come through the party which may be held responsible for any failure to bring better times. In other words this opponent of Republican principles has decided that he will vote the Republican ticket and if there is any going back of the promises which have been made, then that party may be called to account, which is not possible if there are chosen to the legislature a number of irresponsible independents.

The Republican party is responsible for the men whose names are on its ticket. They stand sponsor for them in all that may come during their terms of office. There will never be any question as to where they may be found and this will give to the voters of the Territory an opportunity to place the responsibility for failure of any legislation in which they are interested.

The election of today is no walkover for any party. It needs the best efforts of each voter and he is the patriot who votes straight and secures the vote of some friend as well. To cut the ticket means the offering of a weak spot for the attacks of the enemy, and he who fails of entire fidelity now weakens his party just as a deserting soldier gives the foe an opportunity.

What if you have a friend on another ticket. Does your friendship mean more than your love of the future of the Territory? If you will not put it on so high a plane does not your love of your pocket rise above the friendship for any of the hybrid nominees? Some one has said in the slang of the day "We're all out for the stuff," and if that strikes you, have you had as much of the stuff in the last two years as you had before? Have you had all you want? Have you no use for prosperity? A vote for the Republican ticket means progress and plenty.

A FAILURE IN CONGRESS.

While at Washington, Delegate Wilcox had sixteen projects in hand, mainly covered by bills or resolutions and every one of these failed.

Other men passed a multitude of bills. All in all over 3,000 are said to have become laws, but not one of them bears the name of the Delegate from Hawaii. There was a chance for him to pass the fire claims measure and bring a million dollars to Honolulu. All he needed to do was to put the finishing touches in the House to the work J. G. Pratt had done in the committee rooms, but he left his post and started for Hawaii before the measure came up. Hence no money for the fire claimants.

Of the billion dollars appropriated by Congress at a single session Wilcox did not get a cent for Hawaii though he got between $6,000 and $7,000 for himself in salary and allowances. An even division as between States and Territories would have given Hawaii $19,000,000; an equitable pro rata would have given it not less than $1,000,000. This sum paid out for public works would have kept every workingman busy. But Wilcox did not secure a penny.

It will be the same way again if he is re-elected. He will be a man without a party. As a Home Ruler he can get help from neither Republicans nor Democrats; and so will be forced to come home at the end of his term burdened with another load of failures. Is it wise to perpetuate the failure policy?

It shows the desperation of the Home Rulers when they make the absurd statement that, in case the Prince is elected, W. O. Smith would become his secretary. Mr. Smith has too much to do at home to enable him to spend the time and money required in holding down a $100 per month clerical job at Washington.

Wilcox's "free" homestead bill means back-country land at five years' hard labor, at a cost in cash, improvements and toll of $90 per acre. It is as big a humbug as most any other thing proposed by the delinquent Delegate.

Humphreys begins to find out that the day of the packed grand jury has passed.

Don't itch to scratch.

LABOR'S DUTY TO ITSELF.

The attitude of the North Dakota farmers who want to settle in the Kona district, but will not come if the election goes Home Rule, is precisely that of large capitalists whose investments here would give work to wage earners. Where there is any chance that questions of police, health and especially of taxation will be put into the hands of the most irresponsible classes of the Territory, the home seeker and investor become extremely cautious. For all they know such a result would be an incentive to anarchy, or at least to a state of things scarcely less deplorable. Naturally they will not take such risks. They do not need to, seeing how many openings there are for settlement and investment elsewhere under a state of government where policies of legislation are sane and their execution business-like.

We venture nothing by the prediction that if the Home Rule ticket wins today there will be two years more of tight times for labor, even if, meanwhile, the price of sugar gets back on its old basis. It is not always the amount of money in a country which determines good or bad times. During the worst periods of financial stringency in America the banks were gorged with coin. But a want of confidence among investors kept it there. The coin was not drawn out to be put into business and commerce and manufacture, where labor is employed; it was simply let alone, waiting for a return of confidence. So it would be in Hawaii under Home Rule, no matter how much gold might be made from sugar or from other lines of trade. Investments of Hawaiian money would then be made on the mainland or abroad; and our island labor would feel the pinch of poverty as it never did before. Labor is always hit worst by hard times. Capital simply has to endure a period where it cannot branch out along local lines of investment, but it remains intact with its purchasing power for the owner unimpaired. Labor on the other hand has nothing but its hands and these are unemployed; and the test of endurance is made by hunger and wretchedness.

If the laboring man wants work for the next two years he should see that his vote is so placed as to give the capitalist reason to spend money with faith in the outcome of the venture. A Republican victory would mean not only that local capital would seek employment but that outside capital would come in to work with it. Everybody remembers how things were before the Home Rule legislature was elected. There was so much more work than local wage-earners could care for that men had to be brought from the mainland to do what was left over. The stringency which followed was only partly due to a lowering of the price of sugar; much of it is directly traceable to the passage of legislative power into the hands of men who used it ignorantly and maliciously and with a view of making the white man suffer. Any laboring man in whom the instinct of self-preservation is developed, knows that it will not pay to have this sort of an abuse continue. He owes to himself the vote to bring back that portion of good times of which the Home Rule victory of 1900 deprived him.

KUHIO'S QUALIFICATIONS.

Kuhio is an intelligent man who knows what Hawaii needs of Congress and has the capacity to get it.

In doing his work he would have some advantages which are denied to his competitor:

I. A great party to help him pass his bills and a President of the same party to sign them.

II. A high social station which would enable him to make friends on the outside, who would help him on the inside.

III. The backing at home of men who are able to bring a tremendous pressure to bear at Washington. With such assistance, his own qualities of mind and character ought to make Prince Kuhio an exceedingly useful Delegate.

Democrats have no ticket of their own and have been told by Wilcox that he can get on very well without them.

Ringing Noises

In the ears (how disagreeable they are!) become chronic and cause much uneasiness and even temporary distraction. They are signs of catarrh; other signs are droppings in the throat, nasal sounds of the voice, impaired taste, smell and hearing.

Catarrh is a constitutional disease, originating in impure blood, and requires a constitutional remedy.

"I suffered from catarrh in the head and loss of appetite and sleep. My blood was thin and I felt bad all over most of the time. I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla and now have no symptoms of catarrh. I have a good appetite, and sleep well. I heartily recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all my friends." R. L. Loxe, California Junction, Iowa.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Cures catarrh of the nose, throat, bowels, etc., removes all its effects, and builds up the whole system.
